

Biography

Sarah Valentine is the Director of Corporate Affairs and Communications for Raytheon Australia. In this role she is responsible for marketing communications for the organisation – including advertising and corporate identity, public relations and media management, organisational communications, web and social media messaging, as well as community relations.

Since joining the company in 2004 Sarah has held the position of Communications Manager, Corporate Operations Manager as well as Deputy Director of Corporate Affairs and Communications. In addition, she provided direct support to the Hobart Class Air Warfare Destroyer (AWD) customer in the role of Alliance Communications Manager.

Prior to joining Raytheon Australia, Sarah worked as Director of Operations at the ACT & Region Chamber of Commerce & Industry for a period of five years. During this time she held responsibility for the Economic Policy, Sales and Marketing, and Industrial Relations functions.

Sarah has also held the positions of Executive Director of the ACT Australian Industry and Defence Network (AIDN – ACT) and Executive Director of the ACT Retail Traders Association (RTA – ACT) and was a founding board member of Canberra’s Young Business Network.

In 2001 Sarah held a volunteer post in Kiribati where she assisted in the development of the Kiribati Chamber of Commerce.

Sarah is both an Economics and Arts (Sociology) graduate from the Australian National University.